

"The amplifier I recommend to all my customers is the same amp I use in my own car."

—Micah Sheveloff, Audio Coupe

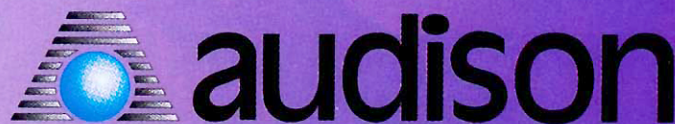

As the co-owner/chief installer at Audio Coupe, Micah Sheveloff had many choices when it came to amplifiers for his own car. He chose Audison.

"Audison's old world craftsmanship is instantly recognizable," Micah says. "And they have a non-mass produced sound that's totally different from the majority of car amplifiers you hear today."

That's because all Audison amplifiers are entirely conceived, designed and manufactured in Italy using only the finest component parts, precisely matched for each model. Special attention has been paid to both the dynamic and continuous power capabilities, assuring you of flawless performance, even at the most demanding competition levels.

And with models starting as low as $129, even the most budget conscious buyer can move up with Audison.

When someone has made excellence in autosound their profession, as Micah Sheveloff has, they're not going to take short cuts when it comes to their own enjoyment. That's why Micah uses Audison in his vehicle. And why you should too.
